Certificate of Appreciation

I have had the opportunity to discuss business and operational matters with Mr. G. A. Sheth.

Mr. Sheth's approach to problem-solving is analytical and structured. He makes an effort to understand the complete process before focusing on an individual issue. This allows him to identify the root cause of a problem rather than simply addressing its symptoms.

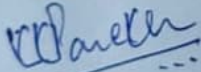

His engineering and computer science background gives him the ability to understand technical matters, while his analytical approach enables him to connect those matters with broader business objectives.

During our interaction, I found him to be intellectually curious, disciplined and focused on practical outcomes.

His ability to structure an ambiguous problem, analyse available information and discuss alternative solutions was particularly impressive.

I believe Mr. Sheth has strong potential in strategy, business analytics, operations consulting and technology-driven transformation.
